

The Black Book Of Moral

In the unbridled grip of ignorance

---

I am writing this book for my Companions who are aware of the impending danger, who see clearly the moral decay of this human society, and whose goal is to stop this paradigm. In this book, I offer an insight into humanity's misguided moral perceptions and worldview, and I give my own views on this phenomenon. Be Good And May The Force Be With You.

What do we mean by morale? What concept would make sense of the commonplace, decadent tendency of humanity to take a mistaken moral view? When will we ever understand and recognise the sinful soul that roams this wonderful earth every day, and that is none other than man. Is society ready to master the concept of what we call decadence? Mortal man is incapable of grasping the virtue in which he could share if he cut himself off from ignorance, but he is incapable of doing so in the light of the absence of Knowledge. For man's mental programming is full of scepticism, and this is the moral decadence of modern man. It is surreal, it is uncanny to think of the below average moral level of the average person - and in this category, the person who categorizes himself as average but better than average, or above average, is no exception for me, thus digging a chasm under himself.

With which the essence of his existence tends to float to a low level, slowly falling, and he cannot see this in the light of his ignorance, in the rage of his decadence, because he lacks the value from which not only he, but all humanity suffers - the beautiful name of which is Knowledge. Our souls vibrate at such a low frequency without nurturing that it is a headache to see this fact. And this is the seal of man's fate, the lack of Knowledge. Nihilism as a virtue.

Would we call this concept a virtue if we were concerned with the underlying content? Why does one become a nihilist? The answer to this is not difficult, it is all the easier to grasp because it gives an insight into understanding that brings us closer to the moral fact by which we understand the spiritual decadence of the mind of the decadent man. Human society vomits out of itself that which does not suit it.

---

The first phase has taken place, and in the light of its escalation has been transformed into the morality of the average man of today. It is not difficult to understand the human mind reeking of lies, contempt and decadence. The common man, who has lost hope, who is stabbed like a knife through butter, and who is held captive by madness.

Mankind, lost in virtue, stumbling in decadence, and understanding destruction. Hopelessness, false joy, false ideals - these are the essence of the moral assumptions of the common man, and from these the majority tendency of humanity suffers. For what is man's existence without his quintessence? The prodigal man, whose mind is full of assumptions and desires for improvement, but who ignores the monotonous identity of his life and, while walking the path of destruction, encounters concepts such as depression, paranoia, false ideals and intoxicating yet comforting thoughts of suicide.

In a moral crisis, the chance to repair life is given - one must come to a recognition of danger, a correction and a recovery of virtues. What is man without virtues? I am melancholy at the level of the moral state of humanity in which we live. Where people give the appearance of being themselves, everyone wants to conform to the herd, and so they put on a mask to hide their true personality and virtues, projecting to the outside world a realistic image that captivates people. The programming of the human mind and soul is simple.

And those who know it manipulate people as and when they want. Because man is ignorant, and in the light of surreal delusions, a buyer. Because what is man? Who is man and what is man's function? In our galaxy there are countless fleas, yet man lives off them, and ignoring this philosophical question we get the average, and from the average we get the decadent. The decadent that unlocks the door of nihilism with the key to the destructive door that lets it in. The door has no warning to hold it back. Where has he gone? Who did not put it out? Or perhaps who took it down? As soon as one sets foot in the nihilistic world beyond the door, one gets what one unconsciously craves: solitude, isolation, silence.

But all this comes at a price, and the nihilist does not realise this, because he is furious with the world that has despised him, that has cast him out, that has vomited him out of himself and set him on the path of nihilism. But then the question arises and is formulated in the mind - What is the world? Perhaps it is the world we live in, or perhaps it is the world that is the world for us. For the deconstruction of the world takes many forms, and this includes man. As many people, as many minds, as many worlds. The world is different for everyone, and that is what distinguishes man from the rest. Individuality, pride, idiocy. These three concepts are present in everyone's life, even if they don't know it. Let's start at the beginning - with individuality, because man is a special creature and there are as many different people as there are people on earth.

No two people are alike, because no two Earths are alike. Pride - this feeling lurks in man, the cause of much good, but also of much evil.

It is not worth going into detail, but idiocy is. What do we mean by idiocy? An ignorant mind, wandering in a false world, unable to find the essence that would make it happy and in which it can cling. People despise and ostracise it. We often hear that man is a social being. Has anyone ever wondered what this statement means? Man needs company, but he also needs solitude. The two go hand in hand in one's life. Every good thing has a bad side. There is no virtue, physical phenomenon or concept that does not contain good and bad. This must be understood and accepted, for without it man will obsessively seek good, happiness, and will not be able to associate with evil, even when it happens.

---

In the morbid pursuit of happiness, man goes mad for a single evil and has the cornerstone to enter the door of nihilism. For it is to mankind that the nihilist owes his condition, when suicide overcomes him, when he is possessed and held by the thought of anger at society, and sooner or later projected anger that gives us destructive "individuals" that are heartlessly capable of taking more, one might say innocent lives. For man is not innocent - everyone has secrets and sins, and this is the inherent nature of humanity. No matter how graceful, charming and humorous, cute and admirable a man is, if his soul has begun to decay and perhaps even to decline morally. The eye of man is easily deceived, and it is one of the many problems of man that he believes his eyes. This quality keeps him away from and restrains him from the Force, and keeps him in the vibration of a low tendency of ignorance from which there is no escape, for after a time he himself forms his ignorance.

The greatest sin, which creates countless nihilists and decadents, is the propaganda organisation labelled 'religion', which unfortunately is still in operation. This organisation twists the healthy human mind and replaces it with an inherently corrupt and unrecognisable 'entity' that can no longer be called human. What makes a human being human? His mind, his soul, his virtues. These can no longer be called man, because the aforementioned concepts are absent from the being into which he has escalated and which has consumed him - Christianity. We don't need an organisation armed with false morality, stripped of human instincts, operating as a brainwashing cult, like Christianity. This 'religion' keeps the human mind ignorant of Truth because it has been filled over the centuries with monumental lies, rewritten history, fictitious entities, so that the human mind almost expects to receive evil. It is nothing but a false thought-form stored and fed by human ignorance. And this is the dark side of human morality that so few talk about and so few understand.

---

To take the example of the revaluation of morality, we must think in terms of ignorance, which is also the nihilistic mind to which people devote so little time, given their futile, monotonous lifestyle, which exudes the notions of melancholy and melancholy. Man should be able to rise above the average level - but he need not do much, he need only take time to improve. It is not difficult to overcome man's mind by the discouraging example of today's society, given the causes of the rise of nihilism and the vile evil of Christianity. It is not difficult to do so, and to recognize the moral fact that not everyone is called to fight the enemy, not everyone is called to recognize the danger and turn it into a solved problem, because the great moral inclination of humanity is at a low level. In the absence of understanding, decadent man embarks on a path of destruction, paved with rage against a world that does not understand him, that so despises and rejects him.

But he will not recognize this fact, because in the failure of his thinking he is unable to deal with the actions and events that accompany him, and this will be for him nothing more than the beginning of his spiritual decline, which at first is with him only as a faint ghost, but from time to time the concept of the "I" will develop in him. Which causes as many problems as it can. If a man does not take proper care of his soul and mind, soon the soul will give it back to him, and it will hurt. The soul is a concept that must first be understood, not rejected. For what is a man without a soul? What is a forest without trees? What can be done to really stop the ignorance and the "people" who are the result of this chaotic situation, who could be called responsible. If you think about it, these spiritual wrecks called humans, alien beings, could be responsible for the decline of humanity. What is the point of an organization manufactured as a religion, which operates in the back ground as a propaganda and brainwashing empire, exploiting human ignorance and turning the "healthy" mind into a degraded monster, so much so that it has turned out of its own dream world and escalated into a chrysalis.

How dare someone call himself religiously committed who does nothing for his own progress? To be a man, one needs a soul, and to believe, one needs a heart - and this is lacking in many, because they only profess something they believe makes people doubtful, just for 'fashion'. Why is it worth living in such a corrupt world? With our Almighty Father's help we can improve our own lives, but we cannot help humanity so much as to remove the concept of ignorance and the hypocrisy that discourages it, and replace it with light.

O poor nihilist, what do you want?

What can be done to make you realize and recognize the real danger? The danger at present is not society, but you yourself, who are thereby a danger to society. Why do you live a life without goals and dreams? You have been given a life, enjoy it and achieve your goals, which will make you happy and serve human society in its own way. Why live a life without hope? Instead, you just lie around smoking weed as if you won't get up and start doing something meaningful - but these words fall on deaf ears, because the nihilist is incapable of even that, not even worthy of taking any power over himself. Far more important is the actual horror of the self, which exudes melancholy and contempt for the world, and reeks of the absence of Will. Unable even to find the strength to transcend the opinions and views of others, he lives instead for his own ideals, treading the path of his own destruction, his own credibility sealed by the dead man who cries bitterly to the world, but the world gives him no answer.

Man is a strange creature. He has many things in him - joy and love, happiness and hope - but he can turn them his own way, and after a reappraisal of morality, we get from the machine a form worse than darkness, which forms its own darkness, the nihilist. There are countless situations to be resolved. What good are problems and obstacles if they are not solved? Why deprive ourselves of the joy of overcoming one obstacle after another, solving them and moving on with our lives.

Something is destroyed, something new is born. What does this statement mean for a man who has no sense of his own soul, who, in the light of his depravity, is deprived of the power to recognise evil, to recognise good and the inferiority of his reality, and to bring about change in his life? How should he change the physical degradation manifested by his own failings, from which he suffers so much? What can be done about the enormous failures of his prodigal life, in which he swims like a whale in the sea? Why live a wasted life when death is your salvation? If we were to analyse the average moral outlook of human society in general according to the current trend, what would we say?

With knowledge on one's side, one must change one's own depravity and correct it. Every man who deprives himself of the doctrine of Spirituality, or of the attention to Truth, or of the desire to attain Power, and does not attend to these, falls into a trap. This trap will be a spiritual maze in one's life, and because of one's ignorance there will always be bad people, there will always be liars - but one does not think about it, if one sees Knowledge and applies it, one can make a change by recognizing these phenomena.

To seek a way out of darkness is to ignite the spark of progress and to be a positive sign for one's future. How dare anyone call themselves progressive, clever or progressive if they cannot recognise the dangers that are now present, which are shaping the dark side of social morality, and which are controlling the ignorant from the back ground and causing their further decline. In this world, we must accept that there are many people with false mentalities and attitudes. Nothing can be done against them, because everyone has the right to live his life as he wants. With knowledge on their side and open to Truth and higher dimensions. Which Knowledge flows into him at every moment, and by means of which he shapes his life in a constructive direction, which supports him, and by which he exercises power over the average, and in his systematic progress raises himself to Perfection, where he enjoys the fruits of his perseverance and will?

Or does he wish to live his life with ignorance and nihilism on his side? But the deceased is incapable of abstracting from certain things because, lacking progress, he is unable to recognise the facts and 'accidents' that fate throws at him.

We have come this far in our reassessment of human morality.

---

As we consider the philosophical facts about people's moral inclinations, we must also pay attention to another monumental problem, and that is the deception of brainwashing. As an example, I would like to cite the 'pandemic' of the coronavirus, which has radically changed my moral assumptions about human beings. To this day I cannot accept how people can be so stupid in this area. The very fact that those in power are playing with this weapon of mass destruction disguised as a virus, while in the light of it they are destroying the lives of thousands, and let's face it - the purpose of this is nothing less than brainwashing and driving individuals mad in a world that deserves the term 'mad' in itself. Humans have never been completely balanced, but in this situation they are losing any remaining purity of morality and are being replaced by a monumental moral decay. The purpose of this situation is nothing more than to have fun with liberties, while in the back ground something bigger 'event' seems to be brewing, and it will in no way be for the good of humanity.

The fact is that those in power are aware of human instincts and inhibitions and are exploiting them to do things that will shake assumptions about man, and that will be nothing less than decadence. The decadent man is the man who is lost in this world, who cannot find his place, who finds no pleasure in anything, and who, not least, spills his life. The apparent cloud of democracy is beginning to lift over the country, it is just a concept, but of course it is not talked about. The mainstream media is adding to this with a huge shovel, manipulating the human mind as much as it can. No exception is made for the fit, who live most of their lives on the internet, which sucks what moral light they have left out of their minds. Adults are also part of this paradigm, and there is nothing to be done about it, because the 21st century is a new era. The decline of the 21st century is due to advanced technology, where people are losing their instincts, communicating with people on the internet, physical interaction and touch is disappearing, and I see this as a sign of things to come - it won't last long, until digitality takes over physical life, where normal morality is not present, not even a shadow of it wants to show itself, and where the concept of decadence has been pushed to the extreme and human, initial ignorance becomes infinite ignorance, and that becomes the curse of human society. A disease that will sweep across this wonderful Earth, a disease that will curse the Earth, a disease that will find everyone but not invade everyone - ignorance. In the light of his ignorance, the average mortal plunges into things he should not, but his despondent, ignorant, unruly mind will not allow him to turn away from those things we label 'bad' and harm humanity with.

---

The average moral outlook of mankind vibrates on low tendencies, and what can a man who shares Knowledge say to one who does not? What is persuasion worth? What is persuasion at all? Men are easily persuaded of orbital nonsense, because man's mind is actually programmed to extract a part, even a sentence or a word, from the discourse that proclaims Truth to him, and to act upon it and incorporate it into his Knowledge. Since men are guided by instinct, a kind of spiritual degeneracy can easily be brought out of man if he is properly served. But the 21st century is a striking example of this paradigm, where human instincts have disappeared, dissolved, even fragmented, because this century is a century of ignorance, in which decades are disconnected in a chain reaction, and in which man has no place. Every decade brings a different 'disease', 'epidemic' or 'conflict', and it is the human mind that suffers from each of them. This century has been a century of ignorance, but the same stigma can be attached not only to this century but to previous centuries. Of course, in the last century too, there were people of great development, rich in knowledge and morality, who made the Human Society a better place.

In fact, it was in 1933 in Germany that a wonderful mind came to power, who revived the country he considered his homeland and wanted to save it from monumental bankruptcy, wanted to make it better. For 12 years, he managed to get every single person in Germany cheering and chanting his name, and he would be revered and loved by the enlightened to this day, and he would be none other than Adolf Hitler. There are many lies about him and his party, but they are all spread by his enemies, because he was the only man in the last century who was intent on bringing good and getting rid of evil, who happen to be a race who cannot be labelled as human because they are not. The "holocaust", the "nazis", the "6 million" are all lies, and all have an underlying content. But they were invented by those who started the war in Germany long before Hitler came to power and long before Hitler got rid of them. If that period was really as bad as historians claim in their lying documentaries, why did everyone, without exception, cheer him on during that period? Find the answer to that yourself. As long as human ignorance is rampant on this earth, there is no point in expecting an improvement in human morality, because the two are closely linked, and until one recognises that the other is present, the other cannot begin to improve towards a normal life.

---

Since the human moral level suffers monumentally from a lack of understanding, there will always be a man who will, through his own ignorance, confuse his fellow man into ignorance - stupidity is contagious, and ignorance is even more contagious. Unfortunately, the human mind is at the stage where it can accept lies and deception but not Truth, and this creates a great evil circle around the creator, and forces the individual into a great cloud of illusion and forces him to live his life in it. Who would live their life in a lie?

But then what is Life? What is life worth and how is it to be understood? We were created for this Earth and we cannot formulate and comprehend the moral fact of what is Life? Why then do we live on this planet if we cannot answer this logical but complex question? Countless people are sure that they know what Life is. But by their very nature, these people will never get an answer to this question. It takes great virtue and Mind to grasp and recognize the question to be able to tell what Life is. So what is the opposite of this, death?

What do we mean by death? How can we interpret this statement? What do we even mean by this statement? The death of the physical body or the death of the soul? Many people are convinced that nothing happens after death, and with this false ideology they deprive people of the value of having hope in something that happens after death.

I do not wish to give a deeper insight into the death that Christianity has achieved, because these believers are not part of life, at least not living with free will, because they have submitted to an entity 'higher than themselves' who sucks the life force out of man with his destructive influence, who is a fictitious figure who robs man of his 'existing' virtues - the 'Nazarene'. But then does free will exist at all? Free will is the phenomenon whereby man himself decides what he wants to do, with whom, when and where he wants to do it. Can we humans be sure that free will exists? No, because people have a gross tendency to neglect them terribly, and they cannot find answers to these questions without searching for the meaning of their existence. No one knows what is really going on except those who are predisposed and chosen to do so. You go out on the street and you meet exactly the people you want to meet, or conversely, you meet exactly the people you don't want to meet. You go to the store, you look for a grocery, when you need it, you don't have it - the opposite, when you don't have it, you do.

---

Does the world even exist? Or do we just live in our own imaginary world where our minds and subconscious play tricks on us? How do you know if there is some form of life a little further away from you? You only see what is around you - but what is not around you, does it exist at all? Is there life in the big world, or are you floating in illusions created by your own mind, and nothing is real around you? These are all questions that one does not want to think about, or simply cannot rationally explain, for lack of understanding. Your mind is used to a way of life and adapts its view of the world, and you adapt to it. Earth is a tiny planet in an infinite Universe, and what makes you so sure you have a mind of your own? You read this book and these are the only pages that are filled in, the rest are blank until you turn the page.

Does free will even exist? Then why are you living your life with this paradigm? It's because you are not able to recognize and give answers to your own mind, and until constructive change happens, you are a prisoner of the illusion of your own mind. The average person finds countless things worthless, useless and boring. Because of his unbridled lack of knowledge, he cannot find pleasure in certain things and cannot enjoy their positive effects. The number of individuals whose minds are at a low level is almost uncountable. He finds no joy or substance in many things, and is consumed and overwhelmed by the monotony of everyday life, which, because of his lack of adventure and recognition of Truth, does not allow him to learn and grow. This is the way of life for many people, and in the long run, it does not pay in terms of Knowledge.

There are many ambitious people among you, and we must honour and respect that, and rejoice in the concept given to us, and not be part of the moral decadence that unfortunately reflects the minds and nihilistic lifestyles of countless people, and from which most of them cannot escape. There is a monumental presence in humanity of stupidity and the kind of mentality in the light of which one individual is able to control another - but the result of which, in a large percentage of cases, is not constructive, but the opposite, which could be described by a multitude of examples - the concept of destructive domination. As the modern age progresses, the average man is losing his morals and virtues day by day and is slowly becoming a robot. This is the curse of modern technology - it makes the human mind mentally abnormal and forces it, almost commands it, not to abandon its present way of life and to continue this downward trend.

---

Sadly, many people are part of this evil cycle that it creates and perpetuates, but there are many more who ignore it and continue with their worthless agenda that does not help themselves or others, but merely exploits the opportunities technology offers and continues on the path of decline. The internet is a very good thing because you can get in touch with friends you wouldn't have seen at the time. You can meet new people who are (hopefully) who they say they are. There have been countless times when someone has taken advantage of someone else's innocence, gullibility, and manipulated their emotions, their present, and forced them into something that is one-way and the other person always comes out of it badly. These need to be recognised at the outset and trouble can be prevented. Honestly, who would engage in a conversation with an unknown person on social media who you know nothing about, whose page has no information posted, and who tries to communicate in jumbled sentences? Unfortunately, in this society this happens a lot and often does not end well, and many people fall into this trap. Yet this could have been corrected at the beginning if people had used their brains. However, because society is often corrupted by this phenomenon that we call social networking sites, things do not always happen the way we want them to happen, and that is often because people do not use what they have - their brains.

There are many people who behave abnormally on the internet, disturbing other people's emotions or even saying things to other people that make them feel bad. There are a lot of downsides to this, but I don't want to go into that now. For some people it takes a shorter process, for others a longer one, depending on their mental state and lifestyle. I have often encountered the "phenomenon" of younger generations posting as many pictures as possible on the virtual world wide web, betraying their character and identity, both of themselves and their friends, and competing to see who has the better picture of themselves. This is present in both sexes, boys and girls, and both phenomena have their dark and evil sides. Sadly, the assumption is that these people probably do not even now realise the seriousness of what they are doing, nor do they think about the future facts of what the consequences of these reckless actions will be, and the list sadly goes on and on and on. Unfortunately, young people are growing up at this age and you can see that. Unfortunately, many people are dumbed down by social media, and it shapes people so that what they are told there or what they see there leads them to unwittingly participate in this nonsense and to be part of this long process. Unfortunately, in today's world, values that used to be much more meaningful have lost their value. However, the beauty of the old days was that people did not know about the internet (it did not exist then), they did not live their daily lives on social networking sites, and so on. The essence of reading and the value of learning was lost in the old age. Today 95% of people prefer social platforms to learning and reading, and that is sad in its own way.

In the older society, many people were in touch with what was going on in the world and what they should be doing, but that is now extinct and almost everyone is making pictures of their own fucked up lives that no one wants to see, driven only by their own ego to show them to the world. It is a society that is rotten to the core. Of course there are always exceptions, as there are now, but we must not go away and ignore the fact that the exceptions are always fewer than the average. What is the average morality worth? Typically, it involves an average mindset and at best that is it, at worst one is part of the vile, sentimental agenda of Christianity and adds to the concept of what we call decadence. Unfortunately, most ordinary people can be led. And this is often exploited by those who know how to do it, but the end result is not in the right direction, but in the opposite direction, where reason and thinking disappear, the soul slowly rots and changes, and is replaced by destruction. Walking down the street, one often realises where this society is and where it is going.

---

A more evolved mind can change the direction of its own life and begin to move towards a better state, but then I ask those who cannot. Are they choosing the path of their own moral depravity, enriched by spiritual depravity? Why are so many people incapable of reflection? Briefly, to make a long story short, I would like to mention Christianity again as the cause of this mentality, because they are responsible for the destruction of many books, many teachings, and this world is going in the direction they are planning to go today.

This is something that needs to be stopped, but it is easier said than done. We all have great power here, individually, and if we combine that power to achieve a goal that we all want, that we all want change, and constructive change at that, then we should strive for the best outcome, and we will get it, and for that we can be grateful to each other. There is only as much room in this world for lies and deception as there is for ignorance. If we get rid of one, we can say goodbye to the other. The enemy is aware of this and is desperate to keep mankind away from the True Religion. Because of all the oppression, the Truth is hard to find. However, those who have the spark to seek it will eventually succeed and set out on the path of Eternal Happiness, where they will finally reach their goal and receive glory.

Why should one love a figure who has killed countless times, who has forced someone to kill, and in the light of his greed, who knows how many more he has glorified? Does the Truth really require such luck and wit for one to recognize these things and phenomena? What does the symbol of Christianity represent? Is it the cross, to be worshipped and venerated, on which the "Saviour" was crucified, or is it merely a subconscious weapon, with some ambiguity and fiction. There are plenty of inscriptions and human ignorance is exploited to create unjustified fear and pity that this phenomenon is to be worshipped.

It is used by the parasites of mankind to such an extent to further their own ends that there are few individuals who can comprehend and share the privilege of being free of it. For Christianity is nothing more than a murderous, corrupt, manipulative, deceptive and brainwashing society behind a façade that is not hidden from the world at large, but what is written in their books. The Bible is nothing more than a subconscious tool to degrade humanity and keep them away from the True, Original Religion. In this book, however, I do not wish to go into much detail and analysis of these phenomena, as this book is not intended as a religious sermon for the reader, but deals with a much more serious problem, that of ignorance. While the average man is wasting his time on trivial, monotonous and incoherent things, in the back ground something great is about to break out, which will have an even greater impact on man as a being, and which will create an even greater tunnel into the unbridled realm of ignorance, only that tunnel used to have two sides, now it has only one. One can enter this tunnel for the sake of one's own ignorance, but one cannot really get out of it. You have to accept that the clock is ticking and time is running out. Our enemies are slowly revealing themselves, and we must react if we do not want to be trampled underfoot. My aim with this work is simply to give those who are not aware of these things an insight into my philosophy. It requires a more advanced mind to understand this book, and it is not for the average person, nor is it intended for them. Understand the writings, search them for meaning, and eventually the often confusing lines will make sense. The current situation (May 2022) is rampant ignorance. The false morality of human society has reared its head and hope seems to be fading. Mankind has been duped by the crown virus epidemic, which has served no other purpose than to promote a paradigm by which humanity can be kept at bay and silenced, and as long as something happens in the back ground. The veil is lifted and the vile intoxication of the enemy emerges and humanity must come to realise what is present today and what is of no use in the thought form in which man lives, for the quintessence of his life cannot find him and he wanders in a cloud of illusion. The people around them are all ignorant, and you can't blame them because without recognition and understanding you can't do anything about it. But then why does it live on? Unable to socialise and make connections, for him everything is black and white, but he's no longer looking for a geek. They live their lives together, enriched by false delusions, deprived of the Knowledge. For it is not humanity that is to blame, but those who cause it. Humans only suffer the consequences, but it is humanity's fault for not being worthy to think and seek solutions. Whatever they do in their lives is nothing but a false illusion in a bubble that they control, and those who cause it look at this paradigm from the outside and laugh at them.

And on some level, it is the lack of understanding that makes the ignorant fearful. The ignorant person is fearful, unpredictable - because there are so many false delusions running through his mind, and he does stupid things instinctively, and there is no telling what an ignorant person will do. They are easily deceived by the power and ability that only 3-4% of humanity possess - Knowledge. For those whose minds do not accept the realistic notion, which later becomes reality through enlightenment, that the Spiritual exists in all quantities, are just using it in another dimension.

As soon as man experiences the presence of these planes, he begins to change his conception of the world, for the human mind is incapable of recognizing the phenomenon which in common thought we call, even unconsciously, the Paranormal. The unconscious does not have the readiness to grasp this vast concept. For the paranormal exists and is present, and is far more significant on this Earth than we think,

For in every single thing that has manifested or even been born on the physical plane, there is a back ground of the Spiritual. And those who deprive themselves of this ability and glory will be lost in this world, and in the light of their lack of development will be unable to evolve, and will be where they are now, and remain as they are now – ignorant.

---

I am aware that I have recently written a post with a somewhat "dark" tone, which may cause some concern. I would like to point out that this post was written in the midst of lethargy, I simply felt compelled to write it. I no longer know why I wrote it. However, it can serve as a lesson - don't let the darkness take over you, because who knows what wrong you will do then. Ask for guidance, for help from our Gods, and they will give you what you need. There will be tasks that we as individuals cannot cope with. So many times we have to take the opportunity to ask for help. You will not bother them because we are from them, so they want us all to be here, committed members, happy and safe. To do this we too need to take the steps with consistent meditations and mindfulness exercises.

We need to put our being back where it belongs. Concentrate on achieving Paradise and don't let emotions and circumstances like these drag you down. You are important, you are striving for a goal and you will achieve it. Do not give up on your dreams, do not let negative energies control you. Remember one thing - Every time you feel lethargic or depressed, remember one thing - you are strong and you have something special. These feelings often come unbidden, but with the power within you, you can stop them and remove them forever. May the strength be with you.

Depression and lethargy. Self-deception and lying. These are things an SS should avoid far and wide, because an SS has more important things to deal with that are more important than these petty, meaningless and destructive emotions. Emotions can and must be controlled in order to live a healthy life. Many of us feel bad. We must do all we can to make our lives and our present the way we need them to be. We can do this through consistent work, but we can also do it with less and less effort. We just need to use our minds. As we develop and progress, things in our lives will make sense. We will see things, approach them from a different perspective and change our mentality in a constructive direction, which is a necessary and sufficiently prominent part of this Path. Before one gets here, one can be confused about many things.

We must strive to achieve the Divine. We are all capable of realizing and attaining this concept, we only have to will it and make ceaseless, unceasing progress. What is the point of a religion that teaches its followers to be kind to those who do you wrong, pray for those who do you wrong. A religion that has lost its morals and wants us to feel pity. But behind the mask is something, a monster - this monster, christened 'the creature', bent on the degradation and destruction of humanity.

In today's world, few people use their brains. Within your mind lurks a wonderful tool that can give you power over other human beings, that can give you the ability to influence your environment, that can give you the ability to create all that you need. Giving and selfishness. Rich and poor. Few people give to good causes. Most do it purely for the attention and popularity, and to earn double, triple, quadruple, quintuple the money they give. Give from the heart, not in a capitalist way. Nihilistic people always have been and always will be. It is our task to eradicate the ignorance that disguises and manipulates the manipulable man, that ruthlessly exploits his good will - to turn him into an entity suffering from a lack of soul and ideas - a soulless ignorance.

People need understanding, care and concern. Selfishness and egoism. Making decisions for ourselves that affect and can affect other people is selfishness. A leader must listen to the will of his people and act accordingly, not in a conceited way for his own self-interest. If a country has no democracy, that country is doomed to fail.

People must work together for the well-being of a country, not one man stingily. The Christian Church has been enriched over the centuries by the ignorance and deception. Has there ever been a 'religion' that has prospered unbroken in times of poverty and prosperity? What was the 'religion' whose money doubled during these times? Human morality. People who lack empathy or love will not be able to relate to other people - they will not understand each other, their relationship will become one-way. In other words, one person has love or empathy, while the other person has less or none. To feel love for someone is a wonderful feeling. Yet many people fall into this trap and fall in love with someone who has had very little success. Love as an emotion is the cause of many emotional states - disappointment, break-ups, every successful journey into a hopeless sea of depression from which one must swim.

Life is like a sea. You are in the middle of it, you have to do everything and you have to do it all to get closer to an island. On which island you will find calm, peace and happiness. You spend a certain amount of time here, but then duty calls and you have to do everything to reach the next island. Once again, you do everything you can to reach the shore. The next island holds for you the goals for which you have and will continue to strive relentlessly. Once you reach this island, you rest and improve, gather strength and slowly begin your next journey.

This list goes on through many, many islands until you reach the shore. The shore, as the realm of the Divine, where you can become the individual you have striven to become. You take off your bad qualities and replace them with positive ones. From there you will be on the island, where your adventure will be easier. On this journey, you will reach the paradise you've been waiting for. The meaningless gibberish that leaves the mouth of a Christian man. It is clear that in his moral crisis he cannot utter meaningful sentences because he is incapable of it. A man is only worth anything if his life has meaning. To live life without purpose? What is such a life worth?

Grey everyday life that does not allow you to get ahead or stay where you are. Because day by day he gets worse and worse as an existing being, living a nihilistic lifestyle, what is the point of such a life? Whose existence is a struggle in the sense that he is fighting against the darkness of himself. We have to accept our inner darkness, but not let it come to the surface. Every time we allow our repressed self to surface, even for a little while, the more drops we pour into the cup that is the basis of the nihilistic man, and that is destruction. We must live life. The life we have been given and the life we have chosen. I tell people here repeatedly who need help to think about what they have achieved, what they came here with and where they are now, but you also have to talk to yourself - when you came into this body, you probably chose this body for yourself. You saw the pros and cons of the body you're in and you need to find the essence of that. Once you find that, you can start looking for the next one, because there's more. Every person has at least one ability, and you have to discover these abilities in order to achieve something with them. Think about it, you have a skill that very few people have - but what good is it if you can't use it? You have to start looking for the essence of yourself, because those who walk this Path are better at many things than others who don't. You have to use that for your own benefit, and then you will begin to understand why you are in this body. You have to redeem your soul, contrary to the fictional and destructive teachings of Christianity, not wait for someone else to do it for you. It is your soul, you must develop and nurture it. The Knowledge to do this is given to you and you must use it. What if all people waited for someone else to do things for them? The whole world would stop in 1 month.

We must not let extremist people change our morals, we must bring about the change ourselves. A man who is rotten to the core, a man who has lost his purpose, a man who cannot find his place in this world, a man whose mission is to survive the darkness of everyday life and seek the happiness that has not yet found him. It is useless to live in vast material wealth if one cannot find one's place. Someone has a lot of money but is poor in spirit. Someone with little money but rich in spirit - What is the difference?

---

Christianity and low morality. These are based on the mistaken mentality of many people, and this is the root of what makes most people suffer, and what makes hopelessness give way to despair, happiness to a state of melancholy, joy to a sour sadness. It is the corruption of the human mind, the degradation of the soul and its relapse into a low, inferior state, and the phenomenon we see today, when many people are incapable of independent thought, when they model themselves on other people's personalities for lack of knowledge, and which is caused by a myriad of destructive circumstances. Human society has not yet matured to the recognition of Truth - it has been replaced by monotonous life and dull thinking, and this phenomenon is a bigger problem than many people think. A manipulative organisation - Christianity - can be blamed for this state of affairs.

It is an organism of fear and slander that twists and transforms human instincts and emotions. As soon as the voice of Truth is heard, this veil of falsehood is silenced and hushed, and forever at rest. Joy and happiness take its place, the plague of despair ceases, the enemy loses his virtue, the veil is lifted, and the lie is silenced. In time, it will be but a rotting memory in the human mind. Quietly, stealthily, Truth creeps in, knocking on every door, spreading the word that emanates the positive outlook that can solve all problems, existing and non-existent. Man is enriched in spirit, he has regained his strength and his soul.

The concept of the enemy is a fleeting thought that no longer frightens man, no longer influenced by false morals and false ideologies, and there is nothing to worry about, for Paradise is coming and happiness awaits every child, youth and adult, and life begins. Where every single person is happy, there is monumental joy and constructive change sweeping through the environment. The sun rises and people are happy and the sun shines with the light of happiness. The "life" lived so far cannot be fully called life, for the systematic battles and struggles with enemies that man wages against aliens are futile in terms of both the good life and the monumental Truth, for as long as there are enemies on this planet, there is a rightful place for ignorance. And on the door of every house there knocks the shadow of Truth, which is now but a shadow, and is meant to announce that Truth is coming, and is coming, and the darkness of Ignorance will be lifted, and replaced by joy, joy and peace, love and love, and ignorance will lose its right among the living.

And it will end its existence as quickly as it can. While there was no such happiness in that life as is now approaching, why should there be a happy touch towards remembrance, when a simple throng of the living and the dead moved through the streets and cities, and all feared the unknown which turned out to be Truth.

Only the chosen ones were able to recognize the Truth, the other 96% lived their lives in sheer monotony, unaware of the impending danger, and existed in unison on a low plane of existence, while the other 4% ascended to dimensions of which the ignorant had no idea.

And without his Truth he cannot understand this Philosophy, because not everyone is born to this Path, and not everyone knows what is good and evil, who is good and who is evil, what to do for good and what not to do for evil, how to bring good and how to stop evil.

Because of the low vibration of the human mind, we are where we did not want to be. Where man does not understand the quintessence of existence, where brainwashing is rampant, where evil and false morality exist, where man is corrupted in the face of humanity's degradation. What can humanity do to change its destiny for the better? In these times there is no shadow of Truth, for there is no sun to shine upon it. The human mind is not mature enough to process the power to recognize and understand both the good and the bad, the near and the ephemeral, the distant and the tangible, that is often before it.

No mind can be illuminated by light, for in spirit it is no longer human, but living dead. But light touches and warms the minds of those who are mature enough to perceive the near and the far, the good and the bad. The fortunate ones, chosen by the light, begin to build their souls and the cornerstone of their ascension, and create for themselves the Essence. Ignorance is the doom of this age.

It is worse than any virus or infection, for ignorance is a virus in the minds of mankind, and dooms to destruction those who are ingested. It holds it tight for a long time and waits until man reaches the final stage of his decline. From where he ceases to exist, and after death is haunted by the same suffering, and may regret his ignorance - but unfortunately he cannot even recognize this, because his mind is not controlled by him, but by a far worse entity, so beloved by the mortal ignorant, to whom they pray daily.

They should understand once and for all that the concept of 'god' they believe in is a figment of their own minds, not real, but a fictional self-image and a revelation of a monster who hypnotises his 'followers' who are nothing more than trash thrown on a rubbish heap. Existence must have a purpose and a struggle for good. What sane person would live his life in lies, slander and vilification, praying in a false delusion invented against him, which feeds on him and devours him while he is still alive to digest and spit out a "phenomenon" we call Christian today.

However, like all viruses, it must be stopped. Either nature will put an end to it or we will, but one thing is certain, Brothers and Sisters - we will triumph on the side of Truth and ring the bell that proclaims Truth and finally bring the light we have been waiting for.

The Truth has given up the fight against the ignorant because in the process of ignorance the human mind has been degraded and replaced by the concepts of decadence and nihilism, and the time has come for us to begin a new era together to restore and liberate the Earth from false ideologies.

The time will come when we will be glorified and the ignorant will see who was the true enemy and who was the true friend. But it will take time and systematic work to dispel the darkness and replace it with light.

The Shadow of Truth is present and touches those who are open to it and able to understand its doctrines and its word.

Eventually, they will set out together, shining in their strength and radiant in their souls, walking together in the forest, communicating with the animals and nurturing the environment. They will settle down on the waves of ignorance and create a new age that will be chanted centuries from now, praising those who have established the next age, where all minds will return to where they were originally and all will regain their originality and glory in Perfection.

The sunlight will be cast upon the shore, leaving behind the shadow of Truth, and the ignorant will not know whether in the suffocating heat and heat they should stand in the shade.

Hail Satan! Hail The Gods!

Without knowledge, power is lost, as power is lost, so is understanding lost and so is True Knowledge lost.

---